15 th august 2013, Independence day....

what is true freedom...

Where there is freedom, there is independence and there is happiness.....

Our country declared itself independent nation, free from the British rules on this day years back, and there was liberation and happiness...but are we truly free and independent???

Why not we all soul-ar beings on this earth know the meaning of freedom?

We human beings are soul-ar beings..means we are just not body, mind and intellect but there is another very important part of us that is our true essence—the soul..when the soul declares its own independence from the bondage of desires, lust, ego, materialistic obsessions, it soars with exhilaration and freedom, it travels into spiritual realms and unite with its Source, the Creator, The Supreme Power. That is the time of true happiness, the bliss state, the truth...

The journey begins with our awareness, activating the third eye, understanding the inhibition created by fears and ignorance, enlightening minds with higher truth and higher awareness, allowing our inner realms such as astral, causal and super causal region to be one with the super soul and experience limitless bliss, joy and Divine love...

We all are a part of The Divine.. our true nature is bliss, joy and love... today's modern world of competition and stress, we have forgotten our true essence and are living in automatic driving mode...

It's time to drop all the worries, stress and anxieties, and understand what causes this worries and takes away your peace of mind..... it's time to give up on ego and understand what is true love by giving love, being lovable and being loved.... it's time to give up on so called imaginary happiness by collecting objects and possessions and understand what is true happiness is to care and give time to your loved ones by giving your time and attention...it's time to give up any fears that does not allow us to connect with our true spirits.... it's time to know the limitation of our knowledge, awareness, information, wisdom, ignorance, which keeps us soaring in limited parameters of so called bliss, joy and happiness..... it's time to learn from nature and live with nature.. it's time to know who we are and why we are here..it's time to strike balance in all relationships.... it's time to strike balance between spiritual and materialistic world... it's time to release doubts, jealousy and confusion... it's time to give up on your anger, sadness, fears and worries....it's time to release past baggage and future worries....it's time to become happy and free and enjoy true Independence day....
