Remember what is most important

It's not having everything go right; it's facing whatever goes wrong.

It's not being without fear; it's having the determination to go on in spite of it.

It's not where you stand; but the direction you're going in.

It's more than never having bad moments; it's knowing you are always bigger than the moment.

It's believing you have already been given everything you need to handle life.

It's not being able to rid the world of all its injustices; it's being able to rise above them.

It's the belief in your heart that there will always be more good than bad in the world.

It's remembering that every day ends and brings a new tomorrow full of exciting new things.

It's loving what you do and doing the best you can.
